will take place at Woodlawn Cemetery this morning, and the services will be conducted by Dr. Guilbert. Inspector Murray, assisted by Captain Petty, Sergeants Meakin and Thompson, were in charge of the police arrangements. They had five men each from the First. Fourth, Seventh. Eleventh, Thirteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, and Twenty-first Precincts, a cordon was thrown around the prison to keep back an immense crowd that had gathered there at an early hour, and it took all the efforts of the police to keep Centre and Elm sts. clear for traffic. In the prison yard while the preparations were going on an number of the prisoners endeavored to get a glimpse of the hanging by means of pieces of looking-glass thrust through the bars of their windows.

The crime for which Hovey was hanged yesterday was of a peculiarly brutal and cold-blooded character. He was a painter by trade, but an fale, dissipated youth, and a terror to all who knew him. He had been several times in the penitentiary for stealing. In 1880 he married Lizze McCulloch, whom he treated with great brutality. While he was serving a term in the penitentiary for theft his wife went to live with her sister, Mrs. Fanny Vermilyea, and when his term had expired she refused to have anything to do with him. He then threatened to take her life. Before he could cause any further trouble, however, he was again convicted of theft, and served another term in the penitentiary. On his second release he called on his wife in an intoxicated condition, but was turned out. He then threatened harm to his sister-in-law for inducing his wife to leave him. Some days later he effected a reconciliation by swearing to quit drinking liquor. On April 26, 1882, however, he came home drunk, and, although his baby was dying of scarlet fever, he began his usual brutal treatment of his wife. Mrs. Vermilyca remonstrated with him. He left the house, but returned in a few minutes, having pawed his coat for a pistol, and with this weapon deliberately shot his sister-in-law in the breast.

THE BROOKLYN GAS WAR ENDED.

The gas war between the Brooklyn and Falton Municipal Gas Companies in Brooklyn, which has been carried on for several months, is announced to end with this month. On November 1 an agreement between the two companies will go into effect, and the cost of gas will advance from $1 to $2 a thousand. By the terms of the agreement the directors of the Fulton Municipal Company, which makes naphtha or water gas, will secure control of 20 per cent of the stock of the Brooklyn Company, which makes coal gas. By this act the Fulton Municipal Company gains control of the six original companies. Its plans are supposed to be to consolidate all in one company, using only the water gas, and then to put the price at any figures which will give the most profit without driving too many consumers to oil. The majority of its stock is now controlled by the Standard Oil Company. THE BROOKLYN GAS WAR ENDED.

EXPERIMENTAL OSTRICH FARMING.

Among the passengers who sailed in the steamer Western Texas yesterday were six large ostriches bound for Orange County, Fla., where they are expected to increase and multiply. The ostriches were imported from Nubia by Charles Reiche & Brother, of No. 55 Chatham-st., dealers in elephants, parrots, monkeys and "sich," for Charlton Jones, who has a large plantation in Florida, and is going to practise ostrich farming as an experiment. The climate of Orange County is almost exactly like that of the part of Nubia from which the experimental birds came. They are the largest and hardiest of their kind, and are expected to go through the journey and the change of abode without serious detriment to their health. The ostriches will be turned loose when they reach the plantation, but will have their legs shackled so that they may not stray too far. They will be fed once a day at a house built for the purpose. When their feathers are of sufficient length the birds will be caught and plucked. Ostriches are plucked twice a for the accommodation of 200 more child en. EXPERIMENTAL OSTRICH FARMING.

At present there are 1,800 delegates, of whom 600 were in attendance at the present meeting, the daily expense being $1,500. A resolution was adopted directing the Presbyteries to take action on this question at their next meeting. The Rev. Dr. N. It was recommended that a collection be made in the Presbyterian churches in the interests of the college. The question of Now-England church work was referred to the Board of Home Missions with instructions to appoint a special missionary. On the invitation of the Rev. Dr. William S. Hubbell, of the North Church of Buffalo, it was determined to hold the next session of the Synod in that city.
